Notable features:

These are bigger buildings and somewhat later in date than those at the western end of the row. They could well belong to the later development when the neighborhood began to improve about 1850. The cornice designs at 830, 838 and 846 are later than those of the other houses. Three houses are gabled -- 832, 836, and 848, but, though in an earlier style, are 1840's.

Environmental context: Many vacant houses: 832-836, 842, 846, 848; vacant lots on both ends of the group. Row faces a similar one across Fayette Street. Whole should be rehabilitated including, if possible, number 834 which is a dangerous, burned-out shell. Busy, noisy street; needs trees; house-to-house and across-street scale good.
